the physician work geographic practice cost index (GPCI).

Rural Ambulance: In providing critical emergency health care to patients, it costs rural ambulance service providers more per transport than their urban counterparts because of the greater distances rural providers travel and their lower transport volume. In fact, many of our rural ambulance service providers are staffed primarily by volunteers to stay afloat. That is why it is necessary to ensure that rural ambulance providers continue to receive an additional 3 percent in Medicare reimbursement, and for super rural ambulance service providers to continue to receive 22.6 percent to their base rate which helps cover the costs of serving patients located in these extremely rural areas.

These rural equity policy provisions are critical to the ability of our rural health care providers to continue to provide quality care to rural Americans. A lapse in these provisions, even temporarily, has created a great level of instability for our affected providers and the patients that they serve. We urge your continued leadership in championing these important rural issues.

Sincerely,
